Major fields of study

HEC, recruits students in the fields of the sciences, economics, literature and technology, in France and abroad, through competitive examinations for first- and second-year studies. Selections are based on the students' potential more than any professional experience, with the aim of training them for management careers.

HEC Specialised Masters, accredited by the "Conférence des Grandes Écoles", are high-level programs open to French or foreign applicants seeking to obtain complementary training in a specific management field.

12 full-time Masters programs lasting 12 months and aimed at recent graduates with 5 years of post-secondary education

The HEC MBA offers general management training in an international, multicultural context for professionals from all sectors with a higher-education diploma and an average of 6 years' experience. This is a 16-month full-time program with an English-speaking section and a bilingual French-English section. Two-thirds of the students opt for the English-speaking section.

The HEC Doctorate is aimed at training high-level educators and researchers in the management studies.

HEC Executive Education offers degree programs which are compatible with the pursuit of high-level professional activity:

- TRIUM Executive MBA (joint diploma from HEC, New York University and London School of Economics), HEC Executive MBA.
- 7 part-time specialized Masters over 15 months, for managers with at least 5 years of professional experience in management positions.
